

Rainbow Leadership

Being a good leader is all about “becoming.” This means that you are constantly working to improve not only your leadership skills but also your self as a person. Your patrol unit will work best when you are your authentic, true self who is consistently trying to better your strengths and the your patrols. Reflect on what might be most challenging for you and brainstorm with others on how you can best improve.

What will I work on?

How will I do this?

The form consists of three identical rows. Each row features a cloud-shaped box on the left, a rainbow connecting it to the right, and another cloud-shaped box on the right. The clouds are white with blue outlines, and the rainbow is a vibrant spectrum of colors. This layout is intended for a reflective exercise where individuals write down what they will work on and how they will do it.
